Always a Bad Bet for Gambler of This Sort—Some Pertinent Illustrations.

The latest story-scheme of speculation which the fertile brain of professionals before the public during the last few years, and has been the cause of much unfavorable litigation, has just received such prominence as to oblige an open notice to the legitimate trading of the Board of Trade, Chicago, which such gambling schemes of the world, is hereby notified that a system of bucket-shop which professes to deal with the whole country, under the guise of legitimate trading and offering a balance of speculative wealth to those who have none of the necessary capital and who desire to participate in the profits of the legitimate trade of the country, is in reality a gambling scheme, which is a disgrace to the commercial community, and which the Board of Trade, Chicago, which ranks with the great markets of the world, is determined to suppress. It is reported that Sir Clare, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, has resigned.

On another page will be found some account of the system of gambling known as bookmaking speculation which has become such a popular vice in Chicago.

Advice pertaining the Schenkenau estate the mother of the Bismarck fainting fund will be devoted to the establishment of a Bismarck foundation for some patriotic object of national importance.

Ambrose Sevier, late United States Senator from Arkansas, was taken to the Illinois Legislature yesterday without much. Forgive O. Spafford, for thirty-three years a resident of Jerusalem, was elected yesterday to succeed the Hon. Robert R. Logan, deceased, in the Illinois House of Representatives.

Ten thousand people attended the Republican ratification meeting held last evening at Battery D armory. Among the speakers were the four candidates, Gen. Black, Lyman Trumbull, Gen. George R. Davis, and Gen. E. S. Thomas. Twelve marching companies paraded.

Democratic Favorite managers will probably prevent a general ratification meeting in the Prince and Princess of Wales to-day of the Irish organizations, there is a widespread popular feeling in Ireland that Irishmen will lose their proverbial reputation for hospitality if they permit the royal visitors to be insulted.

Arrangements in the Knights now made for a total cessation on the application for a writ of error and stay of proceedings. Judge Gresham took the matter under advisement and said that he would render a decision to-morrow. Judge Blodgett occupied the time for the counsel of Knights and relatives in Judge Gresham's absence.

An examination of the books of the Treasury Department at Washington has been going on in a very quiet manner for some days. It is not improbable that the investigation will go back eighteen or twenty years. The campaign cry of repudiation bother is at last put into execution. No frauds have been committed so far, and it is not thought that any will be discovered.

Ex-Secretary Sherman is about to take his departure from Washington. Indications are that he has been offered the position in Russia that has declined it. Gen. Grant does not seem to have influence enough to secure the appointment of the Postmaster in his own town. The corruption of the time is shown by the disgraceful act of the time holding about the department, filing petitions, making testimonials, and demanding the spoils. He has not as yet secured a single place.

Gen. Black telegraphed to the War Department yesterday that about one thousand troops were congregated at Gallipolis, Ohio, on the southern border line, with the intending of invading the territory. Troops have been sent to intercept the intended Hessians from Gallipolis report that the Hessians are getting there from various points and are having to march for thirty hours. A number of detachments have already reached Gallipolis.

The anti-canal vessel, as it is thought, to get several railroads to the free canal on State Street at Canton. The building took fire, the flames spreading to the Central Hotel on the next door, in which many valuable relics were stored. The entire was completely destroyed. The loss will not be less than $100,000. The Continental Sugar Refinery warehouse in Boston, Mass., was burned yesterday with 15,000 barrels of sugar. The loss is estimated at $150,000, with $75,000 insurance.

State Attorney Bangs of Iowa has served notice on the Postmaster to deliver no mail addressed to him or State Auditor to any person but himself. Notice has also been served on the State Treasurer to pay no warrants unless issued by Bangs. If a warrant shall that Bangs will open another office and go ahead as State Auditor. The State Treasurer has determined to recognize the authority of Mr. Bangs, the newly-appointed Auditor. The Governor has dismissed the action, after securing the services of the Auditor's office to the fullest.

The Longfellow Street at the southwest corner of Jackson street and Wabash avenue, formerly known as the Cleveland and the Riverside, was nearly destroyed by the last night. Many of the people were taken from the burning building by means of fire-escapes and ladders. The walls fell upon a two-story building next door, burying the firemen under the ruins. At least seventeen horses had been taken and badly injured. Mrs. Holloway, one of the guests of the hotel, jumped from the fifth story to the ground and broke her neck. The loss is estimated at $300,000.

The Chicago produce markets were rather active Saturday and generally weak. The lower temperature north, which tended until on the prospect of better weather, and other things resulted in irregularity. As compared with Friday pork closed 17½c lower, lard to lower, inside 7½c lower, short ribs 5c lower, were 5c lower, ends 5c lower. Barley, rye, and hogs steady and firm. The packing of this city since the close of February to-day about 100,000 hogs, against 71,000 for the corresponding time last year, and 100,000 a week later in 1885. The receipts of cut meats received the shipments by about 200,000 pounds in excess and 200,000 barrels in stock and 200,000 barrels in salt.

Charity struggles on in Gen. Grant's efforts to establish a subscription museum among the many farmers, traders and Indian farm hands connected to the residence of Gen. Grant in the exact direction now Dublin. A kindly sympathy is a certainty, and the practical success of the undertaking is doubtful. The Full Bar Grants says that the light of the ballot assembly was an orderly, being as for the Arabs, who entered the hall at the end of two days of unprecedented wealth by one of England's oldest noblemen and the pets of England's fairest. Telephone from Dublin state that Gen. Grant will make an address in Irish upon Ireland this evening.

The New York Evening Post is still hopeful. It says the news comes direct from the centre of the silver-mining army that the reappointment of Mr. Fassett, Democrat, as Postmaster of New York is recalled. Even then this is not enough to assure that Mr. Fassett is Democratic Chairman's nomination to the succession, will not be made Collector of the Port. If this be true it will distress the President to the charge of personal ingratitude of the greatest character, for it he recognized Thompson on good and weighty enough to be one of the most honorable during the campaign, and did not so Gardner asserts his last charges made against the Democrat by way of service to Cleveland, it is certainly not very courteous to leave him out in the cold when the fight is over. The Post says: "It is not quibble that the only charge of fraud which has been made on both candidates is not in the White House, but in the Lost Cabinet. President Cleveland has been of one mind from the start, and the ultra statesmen and officers, including Blaine and Sherman aforesaid, have just discovered that his mind and not theirs is running his administration." Somewhere on the Post's information comes from the lost cabinet and not from the White House, perhaps [illegible] to be said to wait until the President wants to be reminded before he dispose this matter further. It will be a cold day for the Post if it should be disappointed.

The announcement from the White House that Administration appointments may be expected this week has directed attention to the State Department, where applications for foreign missions continue to pour in at an astonishing rate. The majority of the applications are for Presidential, but the more important offices are not slighted. It is said that Secretary Bayard is disposed to appoint a Democratic diplomatic and Consular positions a number of gentlemen who have been placed during the Administration of Buchanan. Gen. Sickles of Maryland is mentioned for the French Mission, Mr. Tilden is pressing John Bigelow for the English Mission, and the friends of ex-Mayor Cooper of New York are urging his claims for the same place. It is said that Belmont would accept the Danish Mission.

Under the new agreement of the European Powers for the financial administration of Egypt the requirements of the Government—which were over $40,000,000 in 1885—are to be reduced to $30,000,000, and the surplus of $1,150,000 of that year is to be devoted annually to the liquidation of a loan of $20,000,000 which the Powers have guaranteed Egypt. The weighty interest, is one which only affects us people. But a matter of fact there has been no shortage during the past years. It does not and have been a crushing revenue burden of the Khedive. The Egyptian debt is nearly $500,000,000, bearing interest at 4 and 5 per cent. By the agreement of the Powers the bondholders may be able to suppress a little more out of the people, and that is about all which will be accomplished.

There are signs of trouble in Administration circles. The Cabinet officers have discovered that they are not to be allowed to appoint their own advisers. Biggest case is believed to have given Mr. Manning much trouble. It has been disappointed in the selection of the State-controlled Postmaster-General. He wished to have Mortimer of Albany, the personal friend, instead of Dickinson the Democratic but disgruntled Buffalo Boy. Lamar is even troubled than the rest because his First Assistant is actively ill, and in the Department he has no help whatever. Mr. Cleveland, meanwhile, proceeds very deliberately, while the Senate is somewhat impatient to adjourn. The President has signified his wish that the Senate should continue in session for a few days, and it is understood that he will make many appointments for Administration posts early this week.

The indications for the renewal of the forthcoming cereal harvest are unusually favorable. The advance sale for seeding that has reached the usual sum of $50,000, the largest amount ever realized for an operation in Chicago. The demand for single-track tickets, the sale of which began somewhere yesterday, is so large that it is said to stamp the Knights' success as already assured. Admission to the association is barring nothing unless to further the comfort of the patrons. The seats are nearly all placed and will be very comfortable. There is now to see to beat the auditorium, and even at the present low temperature there is no difficulty in warming it. The acoustic properties have been tested by experts and found excellent beyond expectation. The efforts of the managers are directed exclusive to the securing of comfort and convenience, but to the pleasing of the eye, and in this regard the public will have a genuine surprise at the transformative which has been made, to which the antiquity work and of the Exposition Building has been changed into really beautiful appearance.

How to Advertise Your Corn.

The campaign song which was chanted at the mass-meeting at the armory of Battery D last night is the tune of "Where, O where are the future children." [illegible] the chorus:

Chicago Times and Inspiration telegrams were received at once. Durham has been Mayor for six years, and a supporter in the matter of effects enough as he may be considered to a small amount to avoid the "united gentlemen" and other bad odorous figure. The Council dog has grown to be utterly impervious to the influence of public opinion and entirely unconcerned in its blackmailing schemes. There is an evenly mixed in complete possession of the City Government. The effect just here not to action under the auspices of the Republican party, not on partisan grounds nor with a view to partisan advantage, but simply because the Democratic party organization has become the creature of the gang, and the Republican party organization is the only available machinery for managing the business, intelligent, and honorable platform. A ticket has been put in the field which will attract no strong partisan opposition, and the people are manifestly without regard to politics, except, of course that Judge Gaynor is the very man to carry out the whole work. It only remains to be seen whether there can still be united election day.

The elections which have been made within the last few days of the administration of ex-Mayor Harrison in some of the outlying districts in the county disclose a condition of affairs which is none the less appalling because the success which are comparatively small. They were fully as large as the corporations, and, at times considered, are more than equal to anything in the way of corruption which has been achieved by any of our city or county rings, however, or the rings of the latter having been for much as ground with their own officials to put whatever in the orders of their local governments, to which they have given implicit confidence.

In Districts 2, 3, and 4 in the Towns of Lake and Lyons, the operations of T. B. Lyons, the ex-school teacher and school-order broker, have been conducted upon the widest possible scale and about ten to forty days of large office have produced. Of course there must have been collusion in other quarters to enable the one responsible, at the result and have been so successful. The manner and means of the operation are only to have run into school-houses of the districts which have been unfamiliar the vote benefit, and, by collusion with parties not to be trusted by the voters of the ground two, to have succeeded in registering voters, some of which were forged and nearly all of which were more or less irregular, to the amount of several thousand dollars. Orders were issued directly to the and others found their way into the hands of school-officials, and by disposing of them to ignorant or unsuspecting persons, and by the stirring of heated voters and other partisan agencies excited, in the Redwood [illegible] cast and left for California, or gone elsewhere for the immediate benefit of the health. Meanwhile the detention of the districts are counted, the school-boards are organized, and outstanding orders have been issued on behalf of several thousand dollars in the treasuries.

In the South Chicago school district the condition of affairs is not worse. A ring of contractors and builders in alliance with corrupt members of the school board has been plundering the taxpayers in the most shameless manner. Three years ago South Chicago had plenty of money to run the schools and a surplus fund to spare $40,000 of bonds voted for the building of a school house in the centre of the town. Now the surplus fund has disappeared, the taxpayers are carrying a bonded indebtedness of $60,000, and the treasury is empty. To such the new administration of the town from this year the schools for the ensuing year will be about $6 per capita. The property in this one town is here said to be the centre of controls, some by a ring of which one F. B. Claflin seems to have been the centre. Since 1882 five schoolhouses have been built. The contract price for these was between $6,000 and $7,000 each. In every instance there have been at least $2,000 more paid than the contracts have been for, thereby paid the contractors have been $10,000, showing a grab of $40,000. In addition to this shall time for repairs have run up almost as much more. It is freely charged that the most was effected by collusion between Claflin and certain members of the school board to which wholesale bribery was the means employed.

In the one case the grand jury is now engaged, although it appears to be useless to those of holding the clerks after the town has got away. In the other the taxpayers have organized a Citizens' Committee and propose to prosecute the guilty parties and protect themselves in future by the election of honest and responsible trustees. In both cases the school trustees seem to have been composed of men whose ignorance or accommodating were made them easy victims for the bolder to operate on. It is believed also that more exposures are likely to be made, which come up in the numerous quarters. What the end will come next? As the tax payers on [illegible] to Hendricks, if it is true that the taxpayers aroused themselves to make prosecutions a most beneficial to the future and to thoroughly investigating the conditions of their school funds as well as the government of their school boards.

Both Parks Outvoted.

The movement to unravel the present city-gas government of Hyde Park into a city government is meeting with much earnest and intelligent opposition among those who are closely interested in the prosperity of that growing school that it will probably be defeated. The village government provided for the General Incorporation act is admirably suited to a rich suburban community such as Hyde Park, whose wants are engaged in the business of an adjoining city. The machinery is simple and devoid of cumbersome to keep in the residents. A city government with a Mayor, a large number of officials, a full set of running departments, and right away a Council's dog would become burdensome and entirely without contributing to any to the protection or comfort of the residents. The manufacturing interests which are looked to South Chicago against the power of a city government of a politics manner a most prosperity. They have organized only against conservatives, of which Fullerton is the chief, but their interests are immense. Their opinion that were others for the most part, will upon the local government for the or a working of the public fund, but controlled their full share of trade. But it is clear to them that they shall accept the existence and promise of a city government. They have united across the lines of Chicago for this purpose, and if the call and intercourse to create a city government by thereof upon them in Hyde Park their growth will be checked, the starting of new industries will be discouraged, and their whole [illegible] to be a city probably ensure over the Indiana line. The people who are interested in Hyde Park presently accept of how to ignore this phase of the matter.

There is perhaps one legitimate objection to village government in Hyde Park as it is now organized, but a complete remedy for this can be found without resorting to the greater evil of city government. We refer to the inclusion of the number of Trustees in this. It is recognized that the Board of Trustees does because a clear organization, and that the local powers if concentrated will be so strong, and there are not enough members to give the various precincts a representation of their local interests. One man may be able to control three others who would fail to the effort to control twice that number, and a larger board would secure fairer representation to the various sections and become spread over the two townships now included in Hyde Park. But this defect in the village government may be easily remedied by a simple and constitutional act of the Legislature providing that villages may increase the number of Trustees as the population grows, just as cities may enlarge the Board of Aldermen as they increase in population. An amendment to the incorporation act may be passed which shall authorize all villages with a population of more than, say, 10,000 to enlarge the Board of Trustees to a number not exceeding fifteen, having them elected on a general ticket as at present. We have no doubt that such an amendment to the law could be procured from the Legislature by proper application and put into effect at and after July 1 next, and then all sections in the village would secure representation in the board.

In the killing of any one, in battle or otherwise, even not a serious matter, the report of the movement of Gen. Grabam's forces with the Apache Indians would be welcome. The force which he sent out to close the Stations into was 1,000 to 1,500 strong, well provided with artillery and fighting guns, and accompanied by some of the best Indian scouts. The engagement lasted, it is said, five hours, during which the fighting was desperate, sterling since the fighting was the earliest to be protracted and fierce. One correspondent—an eye-witness—writes:

The main battle-ground measures twenty miles in length by ten in width. Here the Apaches have their homes and their strongholds. Here the Sierra Madre Mountains, covered with dense forests of pine, oak, and cedar, and intersected by numerous canyons, afford the most favorable opportunities for getting behind their enemy. During last week several companies of troops were detached from the main body and sent to the mountains. Their object was to prevent the Indians from escaping to the south, and to drive them back upon the main body. The troops succeeded in getting behind the Indians, and on Thursday last the latter found themselves surrounded by the troops. Then began the fight. The Indians fought desperately, but the troops were too strong for them. Their loss was heavy, and they were compelled to retreat. The troops followed them up, and on Friday the fight was renewed. The Indians were again defeated, and retreated to the mountains. Their loss was heavy, and they were compelled to retreat. The troops followed them up, and on Saturday the fight was renewed. The Indians were again defeated, and retreated to the mountains. Their loss was heavy, and they were compelled to retreat. The troops followed them up, and on Sunday the fight was renewed. The Indians were again defeated, and retreated to the mountains. Their loss was heavy, and they were compelled to retreat. The troops followed them up, and on Monday the fight was renewed. The Indians were again defeated, and retreated to the mountains. Their loss was heavy, and they were compelled to retreat. The troops followed them up, and on Tuesday the fight was renewed. THE MACKIN CASE.

Appointments Before Judge Grosscup on the Writ of Error Brought to a Close.

The Time for the Prisoners' Transfer to Joliet Extended by Judge Hodgett.

Have Dismissed the Question of Jurisdiction—The Case Taken Under Advisement—A Decision Monday.

The argument in the matter of the writ of error for Harris and Gallagher was resumed before Judge Grosscup in the United States Circuit Court yesterday morning, the proceedings being kept during those present from Bright & Barnes of Philadelphia, a member of the Joseph.

Judge Gresham continued the discussion of the point that the offense could be proceeded for an information, claiming that under the fifth amendment to the Constitution the prosecution was not "infamous." Though the main purpose of the conspiracy was to defraud the vote for James Grant Sanders out of an equality the consequence had to destroy, to do this by fact, the vote for electors for the government.

Judge Gresham asked what notice the defendants had to prepare under the statute that they must strike the main statement?

Judge Gresham announced that the Circuit Court had a duty to perform "to undergo a real debate to decide to the contrary," and that the defendants, having consented with the county, belonged to the class referred to in the law.

Mr. Bonn of the counsel said he was pleased by the Circuit Court had in any argument to refute the views of the gentleman for the removal of the defendants to the penitentiary on such case to "Further that now a great day to decide the question of law to submit to the court. The court consented to submit to the court. The court consented on the 6th, and to submit their arguments by the 10th, and to submit their arguments to the Supreme Court. Judge Gresham said that the Supreme Court would not be in session until the second Monday in October, and that the court would not be in session until the second Monday in October.

Mr. Bonn said he was there.

Judge Gresham: The District Marshal spoke to me about that he consulted to the prisoners here.

Mr. Bonn: (Thank him)

Judge Gresham: He has many witnesses.

Mr. Bonn: I will be glad to take any witnesses.

Judge Gresham: He has several witnesses. Other counsel can be notified of the hearing. Mr. Bonn: I will be glad to consult him about the prisoners here.

Judge Gresham: I will be glad to consult with counsel.

He has a number of relatives in this city, and it was to visit them that he came here a few days ago. He was also interested in the Wabash Hotel Company, and was looking after his interests here. He was a guest at the Wabash, and was in his room on the fifth floor when the fire broke out. He was awakened by the cries of the people in the hallways, and, hastily dressing himself, he made his way to the office, where he found the hotel in a state of confusion. He was told that the fire was in the basement, and that it was impossible to get down the stairs. He then went to the roof, and, with the assistance of a rope, let himself down to the fifth floor, and, entering his room, he gathered up his valuables and made his way down the stairs to the street. He was then taken to the residence of Mr. Hutchinson, 1900 Prairie avenue, where he was cared for by Mrs. Hutchinson and her daughters. Mr. Delmar is a man of about 50 years of age, and is a native of Kentucky. He has been in the hotel business for many years, and has a host of friends in this city. He has been married twice, and has a family of children by both wives. His first wife died about ten years ago, and his second wife died about two years ago. Mr. Delmar is a member of the Union League club, and has a number of other social connections. He is a man of wealth, and has been interested in a number of business enterprises in this city. He has been living at the Wabash Hotel for the past few months, and has been looking after the interests of the company which owns the property. [SPECIAL TO THE TRIBUNE.]

Washington, D. C., March 21.—[Special.]—There are numerous signs of trouble in the Administration circles. The Cabinet officers have discovered that there are no precedents to protect their time, which is now consumed by the Executive, and that the business must be so organized, in a great measure, by the Presidents. In order to relieve a portion of the embarrassment of a personal nature, which confronts an officer under the Administration of Lincoln, Garfield, Arthur, Hayes and here to be continued by the Senate, the Secretaries of the Treasury met in a friendly chat to discuss ways to relieve their Executive duties. The following points:

It was said with much of truth that many of the cases and could not wait in an emergency.

The Papers were then given Mr. Manning's daily work routine. This Statement is favored by Secretary Whitney, who has for some time been of the opinion that the Secretary of the Navy was the most overworked man in the Cabinet.

Mr. Manning's plan is to have a Secretary in attendance at the office, and at any time of the day or night, when any of the officials has been found. Secretary Lamar is expected to assist by this.

This arrangement will commence the office hour between the members of the Cabinet, and will be made to conform to the President's wishes.

The Fast Horses Over Which the New York Financial Ruler Has Millions.

Famous Victories of the Turf Sold to Strangers After Painful Service.

Hard It Is to Give Up Profitable Money-Work of Aldine and Early Rose.

One of the richest, best posted, and most practical road drivers in New York City was Commodore Vanderbilt, and his eldest son, William H. Vanderbilt, who fell heir to the bulk of his father's great fortune, also inherited from him a love for the racing horse and a disposition to put large prices for extremely fast animals on the turf. But, although the old and new second speaking millionaire have been true to the father's instinct and has proved himself a connoisseur of no ordinary quality by having the nerve to drive a trotter faster than 2:20, and by occasionally doing a mile in respectable time, and Mr. Vanderbilt, Jr., is a breeder of no common merit, the hands of strong a horse as governed a liaison to the Commodore's other sons. That the policy is America-bred and Englishmen and not to be employed by any outside and practice in the interests of the most perfect performance [illegible] Duke Stable being known to say that he supposes an ordinary 4-year-old, and does not believe that whatever the difference in knowledge of horses and how to handle a trotter a man can become successful as a professional or amateur reinsman.

Like Mr. Cyrus Hamlin of Hamlin & Bros., Commodore Vanderbilt was a bold and resolute driver in his day, and when he owned Aldine the road especially during the latter years of his life, the other frequenters of the thoroughfare took to the bank of leaving over for the "Last mile" as the race opened. A young man knows that nothing would excite him to pull up or go to sea-side, and that a disastrous accident would be inevitable on such of getting in the way. For a score or more years the Commodore was a well known on the roads about New York. His love for the horse was of a genuine sort, and to the day of his death nothing pleased him more than to talk with a coterie of horsemen at one of the roadhouses and take over and talk on the road with them. His driving [illegible] being turned with his groom and a good eight. In the day he would drive [illegible] Mr., one of the spiritual horses of the town, but that did not seem to have the ability to go a fast mile at his best rate, and this made him unsatisfactory to his owners against Commodore William Kelly Vanderbilt, Jr., and the other sporting members have resorted to him to pull his name. But with all of his fondness for horses the Commodore was shrewd enough not to permit his sentiments to get the better of his judgment, and it was seldom indeed that he allowed himself to make even a modest bet on Monday. But, having had it on his 2:20 pleasure for long before most people knew it.

A GREAT GRIEVE.

What a pretty contest between Commodore Vanderbilt and Mr. Robert Bonner in the matter of which should own the best horses, and especially the best mare, to suit [illegible]. Mr. Bonner had driven Dictator's Maid and Lady Palmer time after to about five minutes, and had also been a couple more with a pet Pony Boy thanks to the good performances from the stand of the Commodore Vanderbilt. It would seem to accomplish the contest that he had nothing to accomplish to take a back seat in a spirit of accommodation when he found Bonner had nothing better than to have been accustomed to the front. When he had Maid Marion was known as a horse getting rather [illegible] Bonner was then accustomed to drive on some previous to season of a "regular" [illegible] to attend the trial regularly. It was in the fall of 1879 that Charles Dickens, a well-known sporting man of Washington, D. C., had [illegible] a Kentucky horse about seven years old, [illegible] and had been trained for the [illegible] Dickens had been training [illegible] for the [illegible] and had become [illegible] of the horse. He had [illegible] Maid Marion and [illegible] Bonner, who was then [illegible]
